Inspired by the Shingle-style homes of the Eastern seaboard, this house has expansive windows and a transom, which takes advantage of the amazing landscape. Natural materials like Fond du Lac limestone walls, individual shake cedar siding, cedar shake and cooper roofing, mahogany entry doors, and Bluestone porches and walkways pay respect to the traditional architectural style. The design is intended to be timeless, and the material selection and construction are meant to outlast our lifetime. Generous floor-to-ceiling windows allow the homeowners to experience nature year-round in this spacious yet cozy space.
